

REASON WHY I DESERVE A SCHOLARSHIP

I am in the person of Sulemana Ibrahim. A 20years old boy born and raised up in the Northern Region Tamale and I am in the family of 7, Mom and dad, three senior sisters, myself and our last born. I live in a small slum area of Tamale where it takes a lot for young people like me to progress through education which I choose for myself. Our family have been handicapped financially and it has always been a problem for all of my siblings to proceed to the tertiary level after the senior high school level. Even though my senior sister managed to pass through the tertiary level in the hands of her husband after she was married. This has caused more harm to the family in various ways, in terms of furthering our education to the next levels. For the past years, I've noticed this by myself looking at my senior brother who have completed SHS and had to learn a trade all by himself and as a matter of fact he is a mechanic.

Things haven't been going that well for us and the family but this never stop me from dreaming, it never stopped me from trying my best to do well academically even though I know it still going to take me a long way after completing the SHS to figure things out and try further my education. I was able to do well in my final year exam and coming out with an aggregate 12 but what broke me was getting to realize that I was going to stay home for some years, don't know how long but as far as my parents are concerned, long enough to see if they can gather that enough money to set me up into the university. I had to go with my uncle to learn some woodwork ever since I completed SHS to be able to support myself, this has got me thinking about my whole dream of becoming a chartered Accountant, would I be able to make it up to it or life will leave me in a dream land.

I am ready and willing to accept and honor any opportunity I will be granted that will enable me further my education, that is going to be a miracle for me and only God knows how glad and grateful I will be. I am bound to live as expected and try my possible best to achieve my goal and make my family proud, this is going to be a 'nothing to something' for me and I promise that I am going I will live up to expectation. I will drop my recommendation letter from the SHS at the bottom. THANK YOU.
